

I. Summary

Students are overwhelmed both by their academic and working duties. Their social interactions alleviate the pressure of their responsibilities. It is important that the University offers them safe, diverse, interactive, and fun activities that would help them cope with their academic and working lives. Furthermore, integrating fun activities where students can implement their studies is fundamental to foster creative and skilled future professionals.

II. Objective

As the representatives of the college of arts & letters, we feel the responsibility to provide such activities for students to relax, enjoy, enhance, and appreciate their college experience. For this reason, we would like to collaborate with the Center for Student Involvement in their night market event. This event is intended for students and the local community to interact and empower each other through artistic entertainment. The students of arts & letters would be able to showcase their creativity and talent.

III. Description

Requesting extra funding for the spring semester, so we can supply students with the resources needed for their performances. Also, we would like to provide refreshments for students during the night market.
