

Statement from Christopher Koo

When I originally headed into the year with Jose, he seemed very motivated to help the students. I was very inspired by how effectively he was able to speak and show himself. And while I still believe that he has that same fire, I do not feel that Jose has the time commitment available to successfully execute his duty to the degree that ASI demands. He has not been corresponding to emails, and has not returned my calls. When I texted him, he let me know that he was in Texas and that he would return a call later that day. He did not return the call, and since then I have been very discouraged from contacting him since. There has been a strong lack of communication, and I know that is something very important for this administration. I trust that ASI will make the correct decision, whichever way they choose to deal with this issue.
